I. Description

The Global Elections Database, formerly known as the Constituency-level Elections (CLE) Dataset, provides national and subnational election data at the national and district level of analysis for countries around the world. The data are based on countries' official election results that have been collected from various government institutions (e.g. electoral commissions, ministries of interior, statistical offices and legislative bodies). The dataset includes election results for all political parties that compete in an election. It does not include an "other" category unless the official electoral data contains one, nor does it impose a threshold on parties in terms of the number of votes and seats that they have to win in order to be included in the dataset.

II. Definitions and Abbreviations

legid = legislature identification code

1=national lower house

2=national upper house

3=subnational lower house

4=subnational upper house

5=presidential elections

rd=election round (runoff systems only).

dm=district magnitude

dtv=district total vote

p1, p2, p3, etc.= party designations. The party abbreviations are defined separately for each country in the codebook. In the dataset, the party designations are followed by the letter "v" to indicate votes and the letter "s" to indicate seats. If a party has more than one candidate, the votes for all candidates are included under the total votes for the party.

III. Notes

Any unique features in the data for a country are noted in the rcodebook section for that country.

Notes:

- The 2001 Electoral Law called for a second round of votes if none of the candidates obtained more than 50% of the votes. This was no longer the case for the 2005 election. Thus, all results for this election are from the first round and have been coded accordingly (i.e., the variable “rd” equals one for all 2005 results).

Notes:

- The 2000 and 2007 election results do not contain the reserved nationality seats.
- In the original data, totaling all the votes up in a district does not add up to the district total vote in the following districts: the Diaspora electoral district [2000], and the Serbian National Minority district [2003]. The district total vote identified in the data is the sum of all the votes in a district, not the district total vote stated in the original data.
- Some parties in the original data have the same abbreviations but different names.

Notes:

- If a seat was not distributed in the round 1 voting in the single-member districts, the DM is designated as 0.
- Lower House (1996 and 1998): Results are broken down according to tiers. Voting takes place in 8 electoral districts (i.e., Praha, Středočeský kraj, Jihočeský kraj, Západočeský kraj, Severočeský kraj, Východočeský kraj, Jihomoravský kraj and Severomoravský kraj), which make up the 1st tier. Remainders are distributed at the national level (2nd tier). To determine the total number of votes cast in each election, aggregate across the 8 electoral districts that comprise the first tier. To determine the total number of seats earned in the 1996 and 1998 elections, aggregate across the two tiers.

- Senate: There are multiple districts with the same name.
- Senate: Party affiliations are based on the “electoral party” and not the “nominating party” or the “party membership.” Party membership allows you to determine the party affiliation of a particular candidate who is part of a coalition.

2007: 26 total: p21 (6), p31 (6), p43 (3), p44 (6) and p45 (5)

- DM (district magnitude) indicates the number of mandates/seats available in a given district, although all mandates/seats may not be assigned at the district level, but rather at the national level as compensatory seats. As a result, the DM will not necessarily equal the total number of seats won by all parties in a given district.
- The same territories may be assigned a different district number (“Dist No”) across years.

Notes:

- 1952 elections are not included.
- Original data in November 1989 and 1990 provide information about blank votes. With elections compulsory in Greece, people can cast blank votes.
- Original data for 1996 and 2000 list only abbreviations and/or acronyms for most parties. Complete lists of the full names of the parties associated with these abbreviations and/or acronyms are not available (telephone communication, Ministry of Interior, July 2007). The complete names were pieced together from various electoral data of the Ministry of Interior as best as possible.
- Original data contained very minor errors in the party totals. That is, for certain parties the sum of the votes across districts did not add up exactly to the total votes won by a party in a given year as indicated in the original data.
- For 2004 and 2007, the 12 seats distributed in the national constituency for the state deputies are not included.

Notes:

- For 1990-1998, Hungary SMD system is majority run-off. Only the second round of voting in these SMD is entered. Only the first round of MMD is reported.
- For 1990-1998, winner declared in the first round of the SMDs; second round elections not needed in the following districts: Bacs-Kiskun 2 (1990); Bekes 5 (1990); Borsod-Abauj-Zemplen 11 (1990), Csongrad 1 (1990); Csongrad 2 (1990); Borsod-Abauj-Zemplen 7 (1994); Komárom-Esztergom 3 (1994); Csongrad 6 (1998)
- For 2002 and 2006, in the single-member district system Round 1, the district magnitude will not equal the seats allocated for every district because in some districts no candidate won a majority and a runoff was needed.

- 1994: 85 seats are also distributed in national lists (125 MMD constituency, 176 in SMD (first and second round) + 85 national lists = 386 total).
- 1998: 82 seats are also distributed in national lists (128 MMD constituency (112 Round 1; 16 Round 2), 176 in SMD (first and second round) + 82 national lists = 386 total). Also, in 1998, no seats were distributed to parties in two MMD (Round 1) districts --Hajdu-Bihar and Szatmar-Beregm, requiring a second round of voting. In Hajdu-Bihar 7 seats are distributed in this second round while in Szatmar-Beregm 9 seats are distributed

Notes:

- Before 1979, the region of Azores was divided into three constituencies. Election results for the three constituencies are reported for the 1975 and 1976 elections. On May 16th 1979, Law 14/79 was passed and established that the region of Azores would have only one constituency. Thus, beginning in 1979, the results presented for the Azores (Oriental) correspond to the total results for the Autonomous Region of Azores.
- Districts for out-of-country voting and Portugal's overseas territories are not included in the data.

- Data generously provided by Terence Wood (terence.wood@anu.edu.au), who collected the data through extensive field research in the Solomon Islands.

- Due to the fact that multiple candidates are grouped under the header of a single party, the party winning the most votes in a district might not have won the seat.

Notes:

- Some states report an `other` category in the official data from the US Clerks' Office while most do not. Potentially, parties included in one state's `other` category may be reported individually by another state.
- For presidential elections, a seat is assigned to the candidate who won the most votes in the state. The dm is blank.
- In some states, the votes and seats of unopposed candidates are not recorded (candidates are not included in the ballot either) although the districts in which candidates were unopposed are included in the dataset. The unopposed candidates in each district are as follows:
